

Biography :

Mama El Rhazi full professor at University Hassan II of Casablanca, obtained her MSc degree in Electrochemistry from the University Pierre et Marie curie, Paris 6, France in 1989 and her PhD thesis in electrochemistry in 1992. She started her career by teaching chemistry in the university of Versailles saint –Quentin (France). She then moved to the University of Hassan II - Mohammedia (Morocco). She was also invited as associate professor at university of Cergy-Pontoise – France, during 1994 and 1996. She is currently professor in department of chemistry at Faculty of Sciences and Technologies of Mohammedia since April 1994. She was Vice dean in charge of scientific research and cooperation at Faculty of Sciences and Technologies of Mohammedia from 2018 to 2022. From 2017 to 2022, she was president elected of Federation of African Societies of Chemistry and also president of Arab Union of Chemists in 2016. Member of Pan African Chemistry Network and Fellow of Royal society of chemistry since 2017. She is President of Moroccan Society of Analytical Chemistry for sustainable development. Chair and Co-chair of several international conferences (ACSD2013, ACD2016, ACSD2020, FASC 2013. Abcchem 2022). Her research interests include electroanalysis, fuel cell and modified electrode by conducting polymers and nanoparticles. She has supervised more than 15 doctoral thesis and more than 20 Msc. Students. She published more than 70 papers and was a keynote speaker at several conferences. She was nominated as Honorary fellow of the Royal society or chemistry in 2024.